Egg Hunt

by Sara Fox

I'm hunting, I'm searching,
It's a race against time.
I'm hoping that an Easter egg
Is going to be mine.

I hunt beneath the apple trees
Where blossom smells so sweet.
I search beside the meadow
Where spring lambs leap and bleat.

I peek behind the hen house
Where fluffy chicks keep warm.
I peer down by the duck pond
It's brimming with frogspawn.

Then, there among the daffodils,
Swaying to and fro,
I spot something shiny.
It's spotty with a bow

An Easter egg, I've found one!
I'm as happy as can be,
I can't wait to eat it,
'Yippeel' I shout 'Yippeel'

Because every play

One day a man went to an auction. While there, he bid on a parrot. He really wanted this bird, so he got caught up in the bidding. He kept on bidding, but kept getting outbid, so he bid higher and higher and higher. Finally, after he bid way more than he intended, he won the bid - the parrot was his at last! As he was paying for the parrot, he said to the Auctioneer, "I sure hope this parrot can talk. I would hate to have paid this much for it, only to find out that he can't talk!" "Don't worry," said the Auctioneer. "He can talk. Who do you think kept bidding against you?"

Boss - Do you think you can come in on Saturday? I know you enjoy your weekends but I need you here.

Me - Yeah, no problem. I'll probably be late though as public transport on weekends is slow.

Boss - What time will you get here?

Me - Monday

Where did the Easter Bunny come from?

by Petplan Australia

As you look forward to a long weekend, spare a thought for the Easter Bunny. The poor soul will be flat-out by Easter Monday, having dispatched multi-coloured eggs far and wide, ready for the frenzy of chocolate consumption that is Easter. But where did this mysterious figure come from? Here, Sophie Mackenzie looks into the famous rabbit's origins.

We've all heard the expression 'breeding like rabbits', and it's thanks to their fecundity that the creatures have come to symbolise new life. So it's come to pass that rabbits are associated with springtime, which of course is when Easter falls.

The legend of a rabbit bringing sweets to children at Easter is believed to date back to 16th-century Germany, when the first edible bunnies were made from pastry. It wasn't until the invention of milk chocolate and advances in moulding technology in the early 20th century that chocolate bunnies hopped on to the scene.

Eggs, another symbol of fertility, have been given as Easter gifts for far longer. There's a record in the 1,307 household accounts of King Edward I for an order of '450 eggs, to be boiled and dyed or covered with gold leaf', and the Fabergé eggs that were presented to the Russian Tsar and Tsarina in the 19th century are still treasured by collectors today.

The Easter Bunny doesn't have a monopoly on distribution. Around the world, other animals are associated with the task. In Switzerland, Easter eggs are delivered by a cuckoo, in Sweden by a hare and in parts of Germany by a fox. In Australia, where wild rabbits are considered to be pests, a chocolate company has introduced the idea of the 'Easter Bilby', an endangered marsupial.

EGGS-TRAORDINARY EASTER FACTS

- We buy more chocolate at Easter than at almost any other time of the year. The festival surpasses Valentine's Day, Halloween and Mother's Day, and is second only to Christmas in terms of consumption.
- Most Easter bunnies are hollow, but there is a growing market for solid bunnies, which are cheaper to manufacture and less fragile to transport.
- As the market for Easter chocolate has grown, bunnies have been produced in more and more different guises. There have been ballerina bunnies, astronaut bunnies, bunnies that glow in the dark and bunnies with exotic flavoured fillings
- In 2006, Harrods commissioned a replica of Lindt's iconic bunny – except their version was crafted from solid gold, adorned with rubies, citrine, topaz and

What do you get when you cross-breed a shark and a cow?
I have no idea but I wouldn't try milking it.

A police officer stops a car and says: "Congratulations, sir! You are the 1,000,000th car to drive over this bridge – you win $10,000! What will you do with that money?"

The driver gets very emotional and says, "First of all, I'll finally get my driver's license!" The wife cuts in, "Don't listen to him, officer, he's half blind!"

A hard-of-hearing granny from the back seat grumbles, "I knew we shouldn't have taken this stolen car!"

A voice from the trunk adds, "Hey, are we past the border yet?"

WE HOPE YOU HAVE A GREAT WEEK !!
